FOR THE TEACHER · ONE LESSON TO MAKE IT

Making the promise with your class

The promise belongs to the class, so the class makes it. You read it together, talk each line through, vote on what goes on the wall, and everyone signs. It fits in one lesson, around forty minutes, and works from Year 1 to Year 6. Younger classes need more talk and less writing.

1

Talk

Read each promise aloud. Ask what it would look like in real life, at school and at home. The questions below help. Let children put it in their own words.

2

Vote

Hands up, thumbs or a sticky dot for each promise. Keep five or six. If the class wants different words, use the blank poster on page 4 and write it in together.

3

Sign

Each child writes their own promise on a slip, draws it and signs it. Scribe for anyone who wants you to. Pin the slips around the poster.

ONE QUESTION FOR EACH PROMISE

Kind. What does kind look like in a game chat or on a video call?

Real or pretend. Could a computer make a picture of something that never happened?

The other side. Who might be there: someone you know, someone you do not, or a machine?

Tell. Who are the grown ups you could tell, at school and at home?

Private. What stays private, like a toothbrush? Your address, your school, your password.

Our stop. When one video ends, what starts next? So who picks the stop?

WHERE TO PUT IT

At children's eye height, near where screens get used: by the class computers, the tablet trolley or the board. By the door works too, as the last thing they see before home time.

PRINTING

The poster prints at A4 or A3. The PDF is vector, so it scales cleanly to A3 on any printer: choose A3 paper and fit to page. One slip sheet covers six children.

COME BACK TO IT EACH HALF TERM

Five minutes. Read it aloud together. Ask which promise was easy to keep and which was hard. Change a word if the class has grown out of it. Tick the box when you have.

The promises follow habits taught in the Guided Childhood primary lessons: Pebble's feel it, name it, tell a grown up; stop, look, ask; private like a toothbrush; who is on the other side; and picking a stop. You do not need the lessons to use this set. Promise two asks children to tell a grown up when something on a screen feels bad or scary. If a child tells you something that worries you, follow your school's safeguarding policy, as you would in any lesson.

SAID TOGETHER, KEPT TOGETHER

Our Class Screen Promise

Class _____

WE ARE KIND

We are kind on screens, just like in class.

WE TELL

If something on a screen feels bad or scary, we tell a grown up.

REAL OR PRETEND?

We stop, look and ask before we believe it.

WE KEEP IT PRIVATE

We keep private things private, and ask before we share.

WHO IS THERE?

We notice who is on the other side of the screen.

WE PICK OUR STOP

The screen never says stop, so we pick our stop.

We made this promise together on _____
