CHRISTMAS EDITION | NEW SCREENS UNDER THE TREE | GUIDEDCHILDHOOD.COM

FRONT PAGE NEWS

Something new under the tree?

The Planet Friends, ready for a cosy Christmas. One Friend for every stage of growing up.

This Christmas, lots of children will unwrap a tablet, a games console or even a first phone. If that is you, hooray! But here is the big news: the best bit is not the box. It is setting it up together.

The Planet Friends have been finding out how families do it, and they have written it all down. Turn to pages 3 and 4 for the Christmas morning plan. Your grown up will want to read it too.

COSMO, THE FRIEND FOR 16 AND UP

SCREEN WEATHER

Christmas Day: bright and cosy indoors, a strong chance of board games after lunch, and screens resting during dinner.

A LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Hello, and welcome to the very first Guided Times!

I am DiGi, the little gold star who helps families with screens. This is our Christmas edition, so it is all about new screens: how to set one up, how to share it, and how to keep Christmas feeling like Christmas.

Grab a pencil, because every page has something to do. The bits for grown ups are marked with a star, so they know where to look.

Merry Christmas, DiGi

News in brief

FROM AROUND THE PLANET

Pebble's tablet takes a nap

On Christmas Day the tablet in Pebble's house has a nap after lunch, in a basket by the door. Pebble says the basket is the comfiest place in the house.

Bloop beats the boss level

Bloop says the hardest level in any game is the moment you press save and stop. Bloop did it with a timer and a snack waiting.

Orbit spots a fake

A message said Orbit had won a free tablet. Orbit asked a grown up first, and it was pretend. More detective work on page 9.

Nova's letters go by post

Nova wrote thank you letters by hand this year. Ten minutes each, and Grandad keeps them in a tin.

DID YOU KNOW?

The first text message ever sent said Merry Christmas. It went from a computer to a phone on 3 December 1992.

DID YOU KNOW?

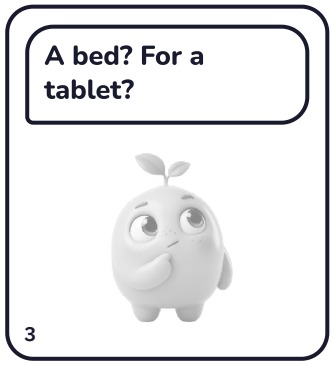

The first Christmas cards were printed in London in 1843. People still send them by post every year.

Six things to do together before you press play

A new screen is exciting. These six steps take about half an hour, and they make the first day a good one. Do them with your grown up, in order.

1 Give it a name

Every good screen has a name. Ours is called

.....

2 Choose where it sleeps

Lots of families charge screens overnight in a shared room, not in bedrooms. Pick the spot together.

3 Your grown up does the settings

The family settings and the passcode are a grown up job for now, like the car keys.

4 Pick your first three apps

Start with three, chosen together. More can come later, once these are going well.

5 Learn stop, close, tell

If something on a screen feels wrong, odd or scary: stop, close it, and tell a grown up. Telling is always the right thing to do.

6 Agree the three kinds of time

My time is just mine. Earned time comes from jobs. Protected time has no screens at all, like meals and bedtime.

☆ FOR GROWN UPS

The first week sets the pattern. Switch on the built in family settings before the box is handed over (Screen Time on Apple devices, Family Link on Android, the console's own family app), keep the passcode, and play the first game with them.

The big question

READ BOTH SIDES, THEN VOTE

Should screens be switched off on Christmas Day?

Families answer this one differently, and that is fine. Read both sides, then have a family vote.

SIDE ONE

Yes, switch them off

SAYS NOVA

- ☆ Christmas only comes once a year, and the whole family is here today.
- ☆ Games and videos will still be there on Boxing Day.
- ☆ Board games, walks and making things are better with everyone.

SIDE TWO

No, keep them on

SAYS COSMO

- ☆ A new game is part of the present. Playing it with my cousins is how we have fun together.
- ☆ Video calls let us see family who live far away.
- ☆ A Christmas film together is a screen too!

What if screens get their own time slot, like the Christmas film? Everyone knows when, so nobody has to ask.

ORBIT HAS A MIDDLE IDEA

The app desk

APPS, GAMES AND AGE LABELS

Read the label before you download

Every game and app has an age label, a bit like a film. In the UK, games show a PEGI number.

3 7 12 16 18

The number is the age the game is suitable for. It is about what is in the game, not how hard it is.

Five questions before you press download

1. What is the age label?
2. Can people I do not know talk to me in it?
3. Does it ask for money inside the game?
4. Does it want my real name, photo or where I live?
5. Have I asked my grown up?

Most social media apps say you must be 13 or older to have an account.

Check an app

App or game .....

Its age label .....

Chat with strangers? Yes No

Money inside it? Yes No

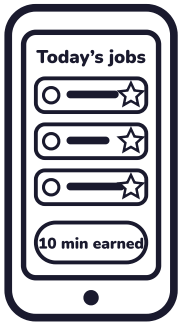

My grown up says Yes Not yet

Dear DiGi

"My friends all play a game I am not allowed yet, and I feel left out. What do I do?" A question lots of children ask

That feeling is real, and it is fine to say so. Tell your grown up what the game is and why you like it, then read its label together. Ask if there is a way to play it together, or a game your friends like that fits your age. A not yet can become a yes.

☆ FOR GROWN UPS

Our app: Guided Childhood

Guided Childhood is the family app behind this newspaper. Your child gets their own app with no login: jobs earn stars, and stars become screen minutes. Every stage has short lessons on games, social media and AI, stamped in their Digital Passport. Grown ups get one small script for the evening's tricky moment.

FOR SCHOOL NIGHTS, AND THE HOLIDAYS

Stuck? Climb the help ladder

5. Write a note for your teacher: I got stuck on...
4. Ask someone at home to listen, not to do it for you.
3. Try one small bit, even if it might be wrong.
2. Look back in your book for an example.
1. Read the question out loud, slowly.

START AT THE BOTTOM AND CLIMB

Make a homework spot

- ☐ A clear bit of table
- ☐ A pencil, a rubber, a ruler
- ☐ A glass of water
- ☐ Phones parked in another room
- ☐ A timer for a break

AI helpers and homework

Chatbots can explain things, but they can also be wrong, and your teacher wants to see your thinking. Many chatbots are for 13 and over, so only use one with a grown up, and ask it to explain, never to do it for you.

☆ FOR GROWN UPS

How much homework is normal?

A normal night, reading included, from what UK school homework policies commonly publish. Your school's own policy always wins. If it is often far more, or ends in tears, the teacher is the person to tell.

Over the holidays, a bedtime story still counts. Reading together is the homework that never stops.

Reception	5 to 10 minutes
Years 1 and 2	10 to 20 minutes
Years 3 and 4	15 to 25 minutes
Years 5 and 6	20 to 30 minutes
Years 7 and 8	40 to 60 minutes
Years 9 to 13	60 to 90 minutes

ORBIT'S ANSWERS

1 is pretend: real prizes never need your address from a message.
2 is real: Grandma, and she wants nothing from you.
3 is pretend: ask a grown up before you ever pay for anything.
The code says: stop close tell. Stop, close it, and tell a grown up.
