Jobs that earn stars

Ask your grown up how many stars each job is worth. Write the number in the star, then colour the circle when the job is done.

- ○ Make my bed ☆
- ○ Tidy my room ☆
- ○ Help make dinner ☆
- ○ Feed a pet or water a plant ☆
- ○ Read for 20 minutes ☆

FAMILY JOBS, JUST FOR HELPING

- ○ Set the table
- ○ Carry the shopping
- ○ Say thank you for dinner

FRONT PAGE NEWS

Your brain loves lots of colours

A good day is like a rainbow. Some moving, some making, some reading, some helping, some resting, and a bit of screen too.

Screens are not bad. They are one colour. When one colour takes over the whole day, the rainbow goes grey, and you feel it: grumpy, tired, a bit stuck.

✏️ Colour a slice for everything you did yesterday. How many colours did you get?

A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

Hello! I am DiGi, and I made this paper for you. It is all about screens: how they work in your house, and how to keep them fair. Grab a pencil. Every page has something to do.

Three jars of screen time

In lots of houses, screen time is one big argument. It works better as three jars. Ask your grown up to help you fill in the numbers.

Phones go to bed too

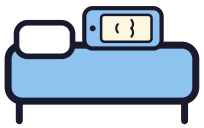

Your brain does its tidying up while you sleep. A phone in the bedroom keeps tapping it on the shoulder all night.

So in my house, the phone has its own bed, in the kitchen. It charges up, and so do I.

INSTEAD OF A PHONE AT BEDTIME, TRY

A book · A chat about your day · A sleepy song · A cuddle

NIGHT NIGHT, PHONE

Our phones go to bed at _____

ORBIT'S ANSWERS

1 PRETEND. Nobody gives away tablets for a password. Never type your password for a prize.
2 REAL. You know Grandma, and she is not asking for anything.
3 PRETEND. A real friend never asks you to keep secrets from your grown up. Tell them straight away.
